The country has recorded a long streak of bumper years, with grain output reaching a record of 663.9 billion kg last year.

The per capita output of grain in China has been higher than the world average since 2010. dazhe5.cn

The repertory of rice and wheat in the country is enough for the whole population for one year.

China imported 14.68 million tons of grain last year, accounting for 2% of the total consumption in the country.

China has unveiled a series of "unconventional measures" to stabilize grain production, including setting regionspecific grain plantation targets, offering subsidies for farmers and raising minimum prices for state procurement of rice, which secured a good start this year and would ensure stable grain production for the whole year.

We have the confidence and determination to hold firm our rice bowl.
